

The Non-GMO Project offers North America's only third party verification for products produced according to rigorous best practices for GMO avoidance. In addition to comprehensive traceability and segregation requirements, the Project also mandates testing of all ingredients at risk for GMO contamination. In alignment with the threshold required by law in the EU, all Non-GMO Project verified ingredients must test below 0.9%

While absence claims such as "GMO Free" are not scientifically or legally defensible, our "Non-GMO Project Verified" seal offers a guarantee to you that everything possible has been done to keep GMOs out of the product. We are a non-profit organization created by natural food retailers to support your right to an informed choice about consuming GMOs. We are deeply committed to transparency and clarity, and invite you to find out more on our website: www.nongmoproject.org

This shopping guide has been created to keep you updated on which companies and products are making a non-GMO commitment. Please note that until October 1, 2009, we are not allowing any public verification claims. What this means is that items on this shopping guide are enrolled in the Non-GMO Project, and may or may not already be verified as compliant to our Standard. Starting this fall, you will begin seeing a "Non-GMO Project Verified" seal or other claim on the labels of some verified products. At that time, this shopping guide will begin distinguishing between enrolled products and verified products. Please let us know if you have questions. You can reach us by calling 1.888.688.7262 or by emailing outreach@nongmoproject.org.

NON-GMO SHOPPING TIPS

The following crops carry risk of being genetically engineered, because engineered varieties of these crops are grown large scale in North America and certain other parts of the world. These crops may not be used in Non-GMO Project approved products unless verified as compliant with the Non-GMO Project Standard:

Canola	Rice (from China, starting in 2009)
Corn	Soy
Cotton	Sugar Beets
Papaya	Zucchini and yellow summer squash

The following is a non-exhaustive list of derivatives with high GMO risk that are commonly used in food production. It is meant to provide examples of materials that are considered high-risk in the Non-GMO Project Product Verification Program. The following inputs may not be used unless verified as compliant with the Non-GMO Project Standard:

Amino Acids	Maltodextrins
Aspartame	Microbial growth media
Ascorbic Acid, Sodium Ascorbate, Vitamin C	Molasses
Citric Acid, Sodium Citrate	Monosodium Glutamate
Ethanol	Sucrose
Flavonoids, “natural” and “artificial”	Textured Vegetable Protein (TVP)
Hydrolyzed Vegetable Protein	Xanthan Gum
Lactic Acid	Vitamins
	Yeast Products

Animal derivatives such as milk, meat, eggs, honey and other bee products, are also considered high-risk by the Non-GMO Project Standard, because of potential GMO contamination in feed and other inputs.

If a product contains any of the above items, your best assurance that the manufacturer has followed best practices of GMO avoidance is for the product to be listed in this shopping guide. Many brands make non-GMO claims based on their certified organic status. While this is a good guarantee that GMOs weren't intentionally used, organic certification does not require testing of GMO-risk ingredients.

ABOUT THIS SHOPPING GUIDE

This edition of the Non-GMO Project Shopping Guide is current as of August 4th, 2009. For an updated list of enrolled products, please see:

<http://www.nongmoproject.org/consumers/search-enrolled-products/>

The Shopping Guide is updated monthly, and current copies are available for download in the Retailer portion of the Non-GMO Project's website.
